Notice to Seller: Florida law¹ requires a Seller of a home to disclose to the Buyer all known facts that materially affect the value of the property being sold and that are not readily observable or known by the Buyer. The Seller's Property Disclosure form is designed to help Sellers comply with the law. While a formal Seller's Property Disclosure form is not required by statute, using one (such as Florida Realtors' Seller's Property Disclosure – Residential form) is strongly recommended to document your disclosures and protect against potential claims of nondisclosure. If you elect not to complete a disclosure form, you must still make all required disclosures. Electing not to provide a form does not waive you legal obligations and may expose you to increased risk of litigation if material defects are later discovered.

Election TO COMPLETE AND PROVIDE disclosure form

I/We agree to provide a Seller's Property Disclosure Form to the Buyer prior to Closing, disclosing all known material facts about the Property.

Election NOT TO PROVIDE disclosure form

I/We elect not to complete or provide a separate Seller's Property Disclosure form. I/We acknowledge and affirm that I must disclose all known material defects or facts affecting the property's value directly to the Buyer and that this election does not relieve me/us of the legal duty to disclose material facts under Florida law, and I/We may be held liable for any non-disclosure. If this election is made to not to provide the disclosure form, I/We in consideration of real estate broker's services in facilitating this transaction, I/We agree to release and hold harmless the real estate broker(s), brokerage firm(s), and their agents, employees, and affiliates from any and all claims, demands, costs or expenses (including attorney fees) arising out of or relating to any alleged nondisclosure or incomplete disclosure of material facts about the property. The terms of this provision are in addition to any obligations of Seller under the Listing Agreement.

I/We agree and have read and understand the above notice and election options. This election is made voluntarily and with full knowledge of my/our responsibilities.
